Project Description/Justification:

A recent Master Plan recommended relocating the airport to a nearby ridge that is aligned favorably with the wind, is situated on excellent material, does not have any obstructions and is more than 10,000 feet from the planned landfill relocation. The existing runway is narrow, terrain limited to less than 3,000 feet and has severe crosswinds that both pilots and especially the community, feel very strongly is a safety hazard as supported by numerous stories of trouble with landings. The Yukon Kuskokwim Transportation Plan recommends this runway should be 4,000 feet.
