Salcha Fire and Rescue is a non-profit corporation providing fire, rescue, and emergency medical services to the greater Salcha area along the Richardson Highway within the Fairbanks North Star Borough. The department is under contract with the borough for the provision of rescue and emergency medical services, but provides fire protection solely through voluntary support from the community. Funds received from the borough for rescue and emergency medical services cannot be used to support fire activities.

Existing facilities do not provide sufficient space to store the department's fire apparatus. Currently equipment is stored in a private shop, not at the department's stations.

Funding would allow the completion of the interior of the addition to station two on the Richardson Hwy. The station is located near the Salcha River. The department services an area extending from Eielson AFB to the southern boundary of the borough at Mile Post 294.5 of the Richardson Highway, an area of over forty-five miles.
