Component Mission

The mission of the Division of Public Assistance is to provide basic living expenses and self-sufficiency services to Alaskans in need.

Component Services Provided

The Adult Public Assistance Program (APA) provides financial assistance and access to medical care for 4,890 elderly and 9,727 disabled Alaskans. The program was created to supplement Social Security disability benefits and provides the recipient with the income support needed to remain as independent as possible in the community. To be eligible for APA, a low-income individual must be over 64 or at least 18 years of age, blind, or diagnosed by a physician as permanently disabled, chronically ill, or terminally ill. Applicants must also undergo a rigorous process to determine that their mental or physical limitations make them temporarily or permanently incapable of self-support through gainful employment. Each month benefits are issued to APA clients in an amount equal to the maximum supplemental payment scheduled less adjustment for any income the individual reports.

Component Goals and Strategies

PROVIDE FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE TO NEEDY AGED, BLIND, OR DISABLED ALASKANS.

- Supplement federal Social Security benefits to provide income adequate to meet basic needs.
- Promote independence for aged and disabled Alaskans by offering the income support needed to avoid costly institutional placements.
- Assist individuals to access services that promote independence.

Key Component Issues for FY2001 – 2002

The APA population is expected to continue to grow at 4.7% from 13,962 in FY2001 to 14,617 in FY2002. The reasons for this growth appear to be a combination of increased state population, improved medical technology and an aging "baby boom" cohort. Because some recipients experience permanent disabilities, they are likely to rely on the APA program for their entire adult lives. For this portion of the population, continued APA funding provides critical financial assistance enabling them to live with dignity in the community.

Within the APA population there are also individuals who, despite their disability, would like to work. However, lack of workplace accommodations, financial disincentives, and most notably, fear of the loss of Medicaid act as barriers to the goal of employment. Alaska has begun to address this problem by implementing the Working Disabled Medicaid option, which allows individuals whose earnings make them ineligible for traditional Medicaid to "buy-in" to the program by paying a premium. With this option many APA recipients can work, continue to receive critical health care, and contribute to their self-support.

The federal government has also addressed these issues with passage of the Ticket to Work and Work Incentives Improvement Act of 1999 (TWWIIA). The Act establishes three grant programs with the purpose of supporting State efforts to assist people with disabilities in securing and sustaining competitive employment. Alaska is the recipient of one of these grants, a portion of which will be used to provide training and technical assistance to APA staff so that they may better support employment for appropriate APA recipients. This grant funding, coupled with ongoing efforts to improve service delivery to working clients, will help the APA program to more effectively promote employment and self-sufficiency.

DPA also continues to participate in the federally-funded Alaska Works Project, a five-year initiative designed to address the major barriers that keep people with disabilities from success in the workplace. Working collaboratively with the Governor's Council on Disabilities and Special Education and a consortium of state service providers, the project has begun to establish a coordinated and innovative service delivery system, and to eliminate barriers that prevent Alaskans with physical and mental disabilities from becoming competitively employed.

Major Component Accomplishments for FY2000

- Utilization of enhanced gathering and analysis of data about APA recipients and their service needs.
- Improved service delivery to recipients who are working or seeking employment.
- Securing federal funding to further the state's efforts to promote self-sufficiency through work for APA recipients.
- Ongoing participation in the Alaska Works Project
