Project Description/Justification:

Voices of Polynesian Islanders in Alaska is requesting state funds to purchase a Cultural Center for its community, the Samoans, Tongans, and Fijians. The Cultural Center is needed to facilitate educational classes. The Cultural Center will offer tutoring; language arts for Samoans, Tongans and Fijians; traditional singing, dancing and music classes; daily activities for senior citizens; family night luaus, wedding receptions and fellowship; educational computer classes for all ages; and a childcare facility with a large playground.

Property has been found that can fulfill all of the Polynesian Islanders community needs. Under consideration is a residence that was previously a successful day care center. The asking price is $658,000. The 10,226 square foot building, complete with sprinkler and security systems, is located on an 18,750 square feet of land.
